The main PGRO variety evaluation trial will be open for tours. PGRO staff will be on site to provide explanations of the trialling process, variety descriptions and the latest applied research as well as thoughts and advise on crop agronomy. You can be guided round the sites on an informal basis or alternatively pick up a site map and make you own way round at your leisure asking questions when you feel the need. All are welcome. The event is free of charge and although there is no need to book it would be very helpful to now you intend to come. If you intend to attend the event, please send a simple reply to sue@pgro.org with your name indicating how many of you are likely to be present.
